DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3, 5-7, & 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent #6,279,842 to Spain.

Spain discloses a fluid injector comprising an actuator unit (coil (27), magnetostrictive rod (36), and output rod (32)), a cartridge (needle case (108) which has a recess which on one of its open ends forms an injection nozzle (at expulsion holes (70)), a needle comprising a first (plunger pin (100)) and second part (needle (60)). The first part is inserted into the recess and closes or opens the injection nozzle depending on the position of the first part. The second part is coupled to the actuator unit on one of its free ends and coupled to the first part by a coupling unit (plunger (98) and key (117)), which is arranged in positive connection to the first part and is joined to the second part, wherein the coupling unit forms a spring rest which a return spring (spring (62)) rests. The return spring urges the needle in a position in which the injection nozzle is closed. The actuator unit, the second part of the needle, and the first part of the needle are arranged substantially end-to-end (in that particular order) such that movement of the actuator unit acts on the second part of the needle which in turn acts on the first part of the needle to move the first part of the needle.

The device disclosed by Spain further includes a receptance formed in the first part (threads which nut (110) is attached) that fixes a keeper (nut (110)) in axial direction relative to the needle, and a coupling body (plunger (98)), which has a recess, through which the first part protrudes and which takes in the keeper and fixes it in the radial direction relative to the needle.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 4, 8, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent #6,279,842 to Spain in view of U.S. PG-Pub 2002/0043575 to Sekine et al.

Art Unit: 3752

Spain discloses the invention as described above but fails to disclose the coupling unit being joined to the second part by welding.

Sekine teaches that it is known to use welding to connect components together in a fuel injection apparatus.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to weld the coupling unit to the second part as taught by Sekine, since Sekine teaches that welding is a suitable way of joining to components together in a fuel injection apparatus in order to establish a permanent joining.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
